

Cheryl Jacobs Joins MCG Partners and Career Transition Advisors

Boston, MA January 18, 2010 – A leader in the world of executive coaching, leadership development, management and sales training, talent management, and organizational effectiveness, MCG Partners along with its subsidiary, Career Transition Advisors, a premier career transition and outplacement firm, continues to expand to address the needs in the marketplace.

MCG Partners, and its subsidiary, Career Transition Advisors, announced today that Cheryl Jacobs of Foxboro, MA, has joined the firm as a Vice President, Business Development. Cheryl brings over 15 years of extensive coaching, management, and sales experience and expertise.

“In joining MCG Partners and Career Transition Advisors, I’ll be partnering with one of the strongest teams in the coaching, leadership development, talent and career management industry. I am excited to combine my passion and expertise for developing leaders, professionals and businesses, with their record for high impact and results-oriented solutions,” said Cheryl.

Previously, Cheryl was the founder of Talent Transformation, a coaching, training and talent management consulting firm. Beforehand, she was an Executive Director with the Providence Journal, running their print and on-line businesses. Prior to the Providence Journal, Cheryl was Senior Manager of Business Development for The Boston Globe and Boston.com, members of New England Media Group. Cheryl received her MBA at Suffolk University, and a BA in Communications and Business from Boston College. She is also a Certified Executive Coach through The International Coach Federation.

“We are very excited that Cheryl has chosen to join us,” said Chuck Mollor, MCG Partners’ Managing Partner and President of Career Transition Advisors. “She has successfully addressed many of the issues that our clients face,” Chuck Mollor states. “Her blended experience and skills as a business and sales leader, consultant, and coach will be invaluable to us in helping our clients address their leadership, talent, sales, organizational effectiveness, and career needs.”
